

Reflection on the trip to GuangXi (14th -17th April 2017)

Yu Chung Yin, James

This is the first time I joined the trip to Gunangxi in Project Mingde. During the trip, we went to Daping for following up a three-storey accommodation project and went to Tengchuen for introducing the preliminary reconstruction schemes of a bridge to the village committee. I was mainly responsible to the bridge project. Before the trip, we had designed some preliminary schemes and prepared to have discussion with the committee for the decision of the final design. In the discussion, we suggested our schemes and explain the feasibility of each schemes, and it was grad that the committee finally accept one of our scheme. We also asked if they can provide information of the river, such as the normal flow velocity and flooding velocity so that we can have further detailed designs. This is valuable experience for me as I gained much practical knowledge when participating in the preliminary design and in the discussion.
