It was a meaningful trip to 廣西. In these 28 days, I have learned a lot with all my teammates. We went to a rural area. Frankly, the living condition is quite poor that i could not get used to in the beginning. At there, even the finest thing in Hong Kong means a lot to the locals. Hopefully it takes few decades for the place's technological level to become nowadays Hong Kong. It reminds me that not everything is a must. We should treasure the thing around us. And we should help the people in need if we have the ability to do so. We also met the contractor and engineering professions. During discussions, I found that my engineering understanding is far from enough. Although I may have limited engineering skills and knowledge but I did try to involve myself into the project. 廣西 is a wonderful place and the local people are very nice. We had chances to visit some local attractions. It was a memorial experience.
